

REAGAN'S JOURNEY

LESSONS FROM A REMARKABLE CAREER

MARGOT MORRELL

www.LeadershipLives.com

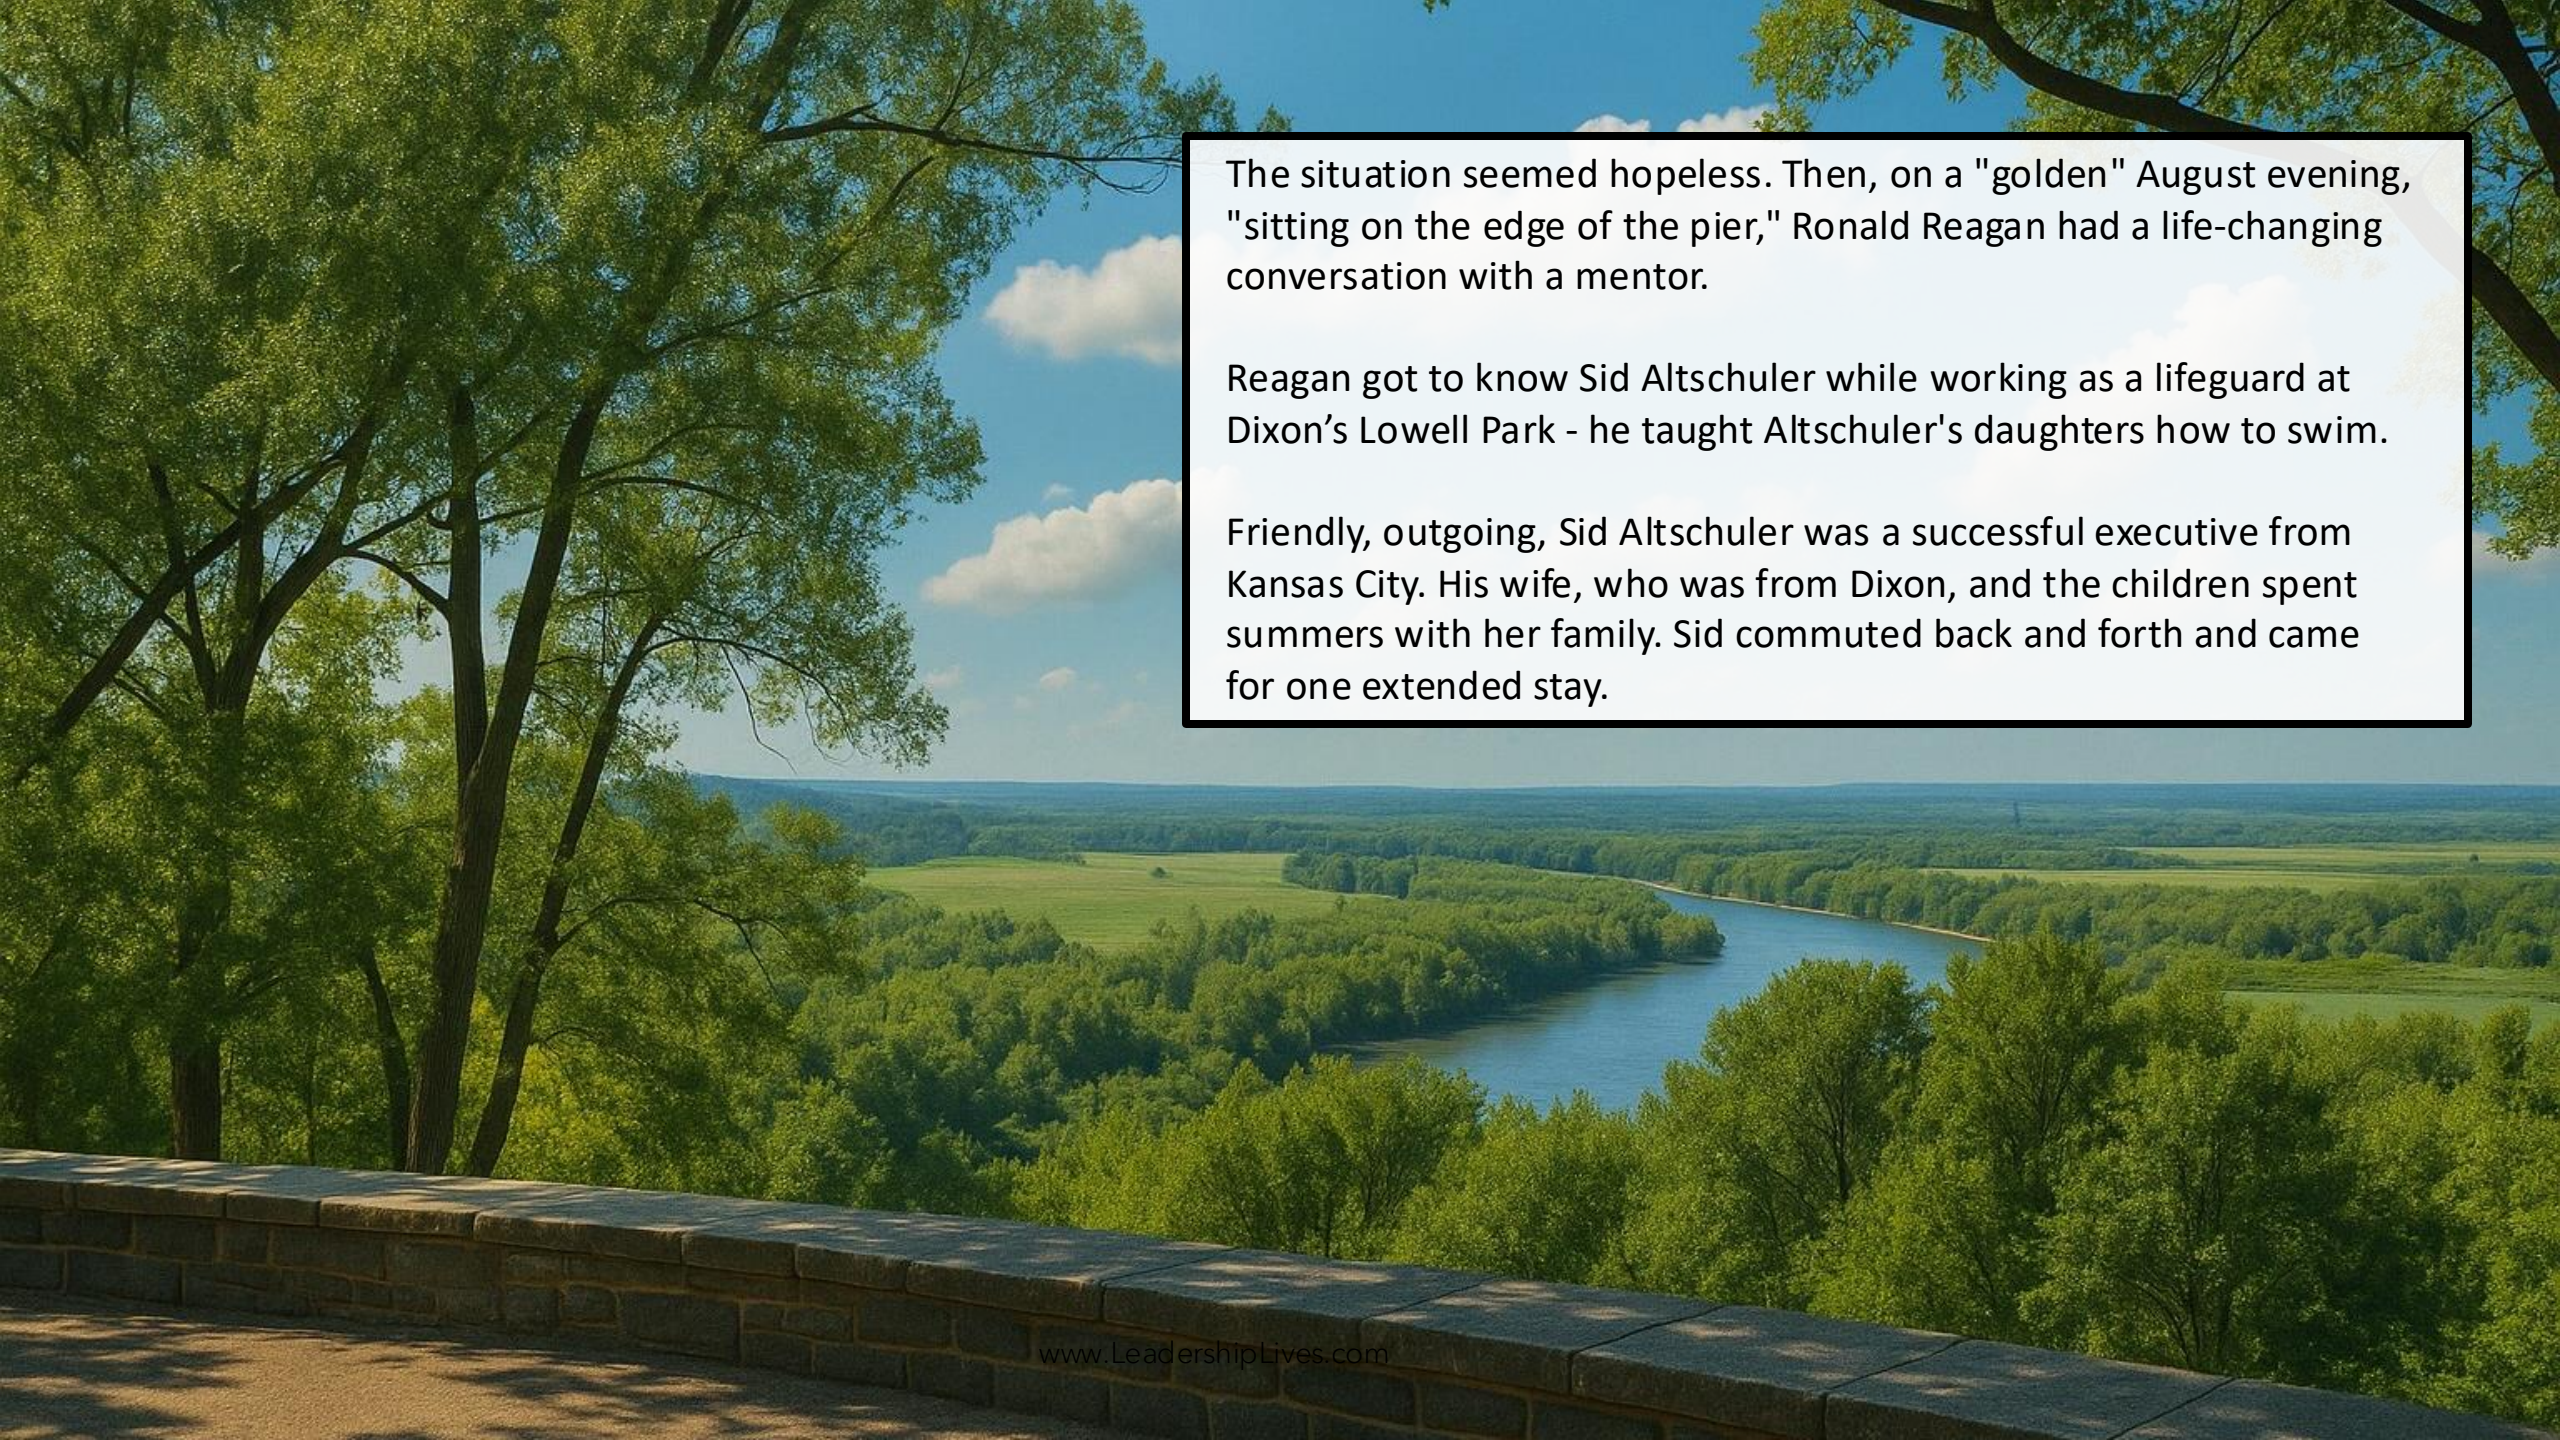

Ronald Reagan graduated from college in 1932 – at the dead bottom of the Great Depression.
Unemployment stood at 24%.

Like many young graduates, Reagan wasn't sure what he wanted to do. But he had to get a job.

He heard there was an opening for a manager at a local sporting goods store, he raced over to apply.
He didn't get the job.

The situation seemed hopeless. Then, on a "golden" August evening, "sitting on the edge of the pier," Ronald Reagan had a life-changing conversation with a mentor.

Reagan got to know Sid Altschuler while working as a lifeguard at Dixon's Lowell Park - he taught Altschuler's daughters how to swim.

Friendly, outgoing, Sid Altschuler was a successful executive from Kansas City. His wife, who was from Dixon, and the children spent summers with her family. Sid commuted back and forth and came for one extended stay.

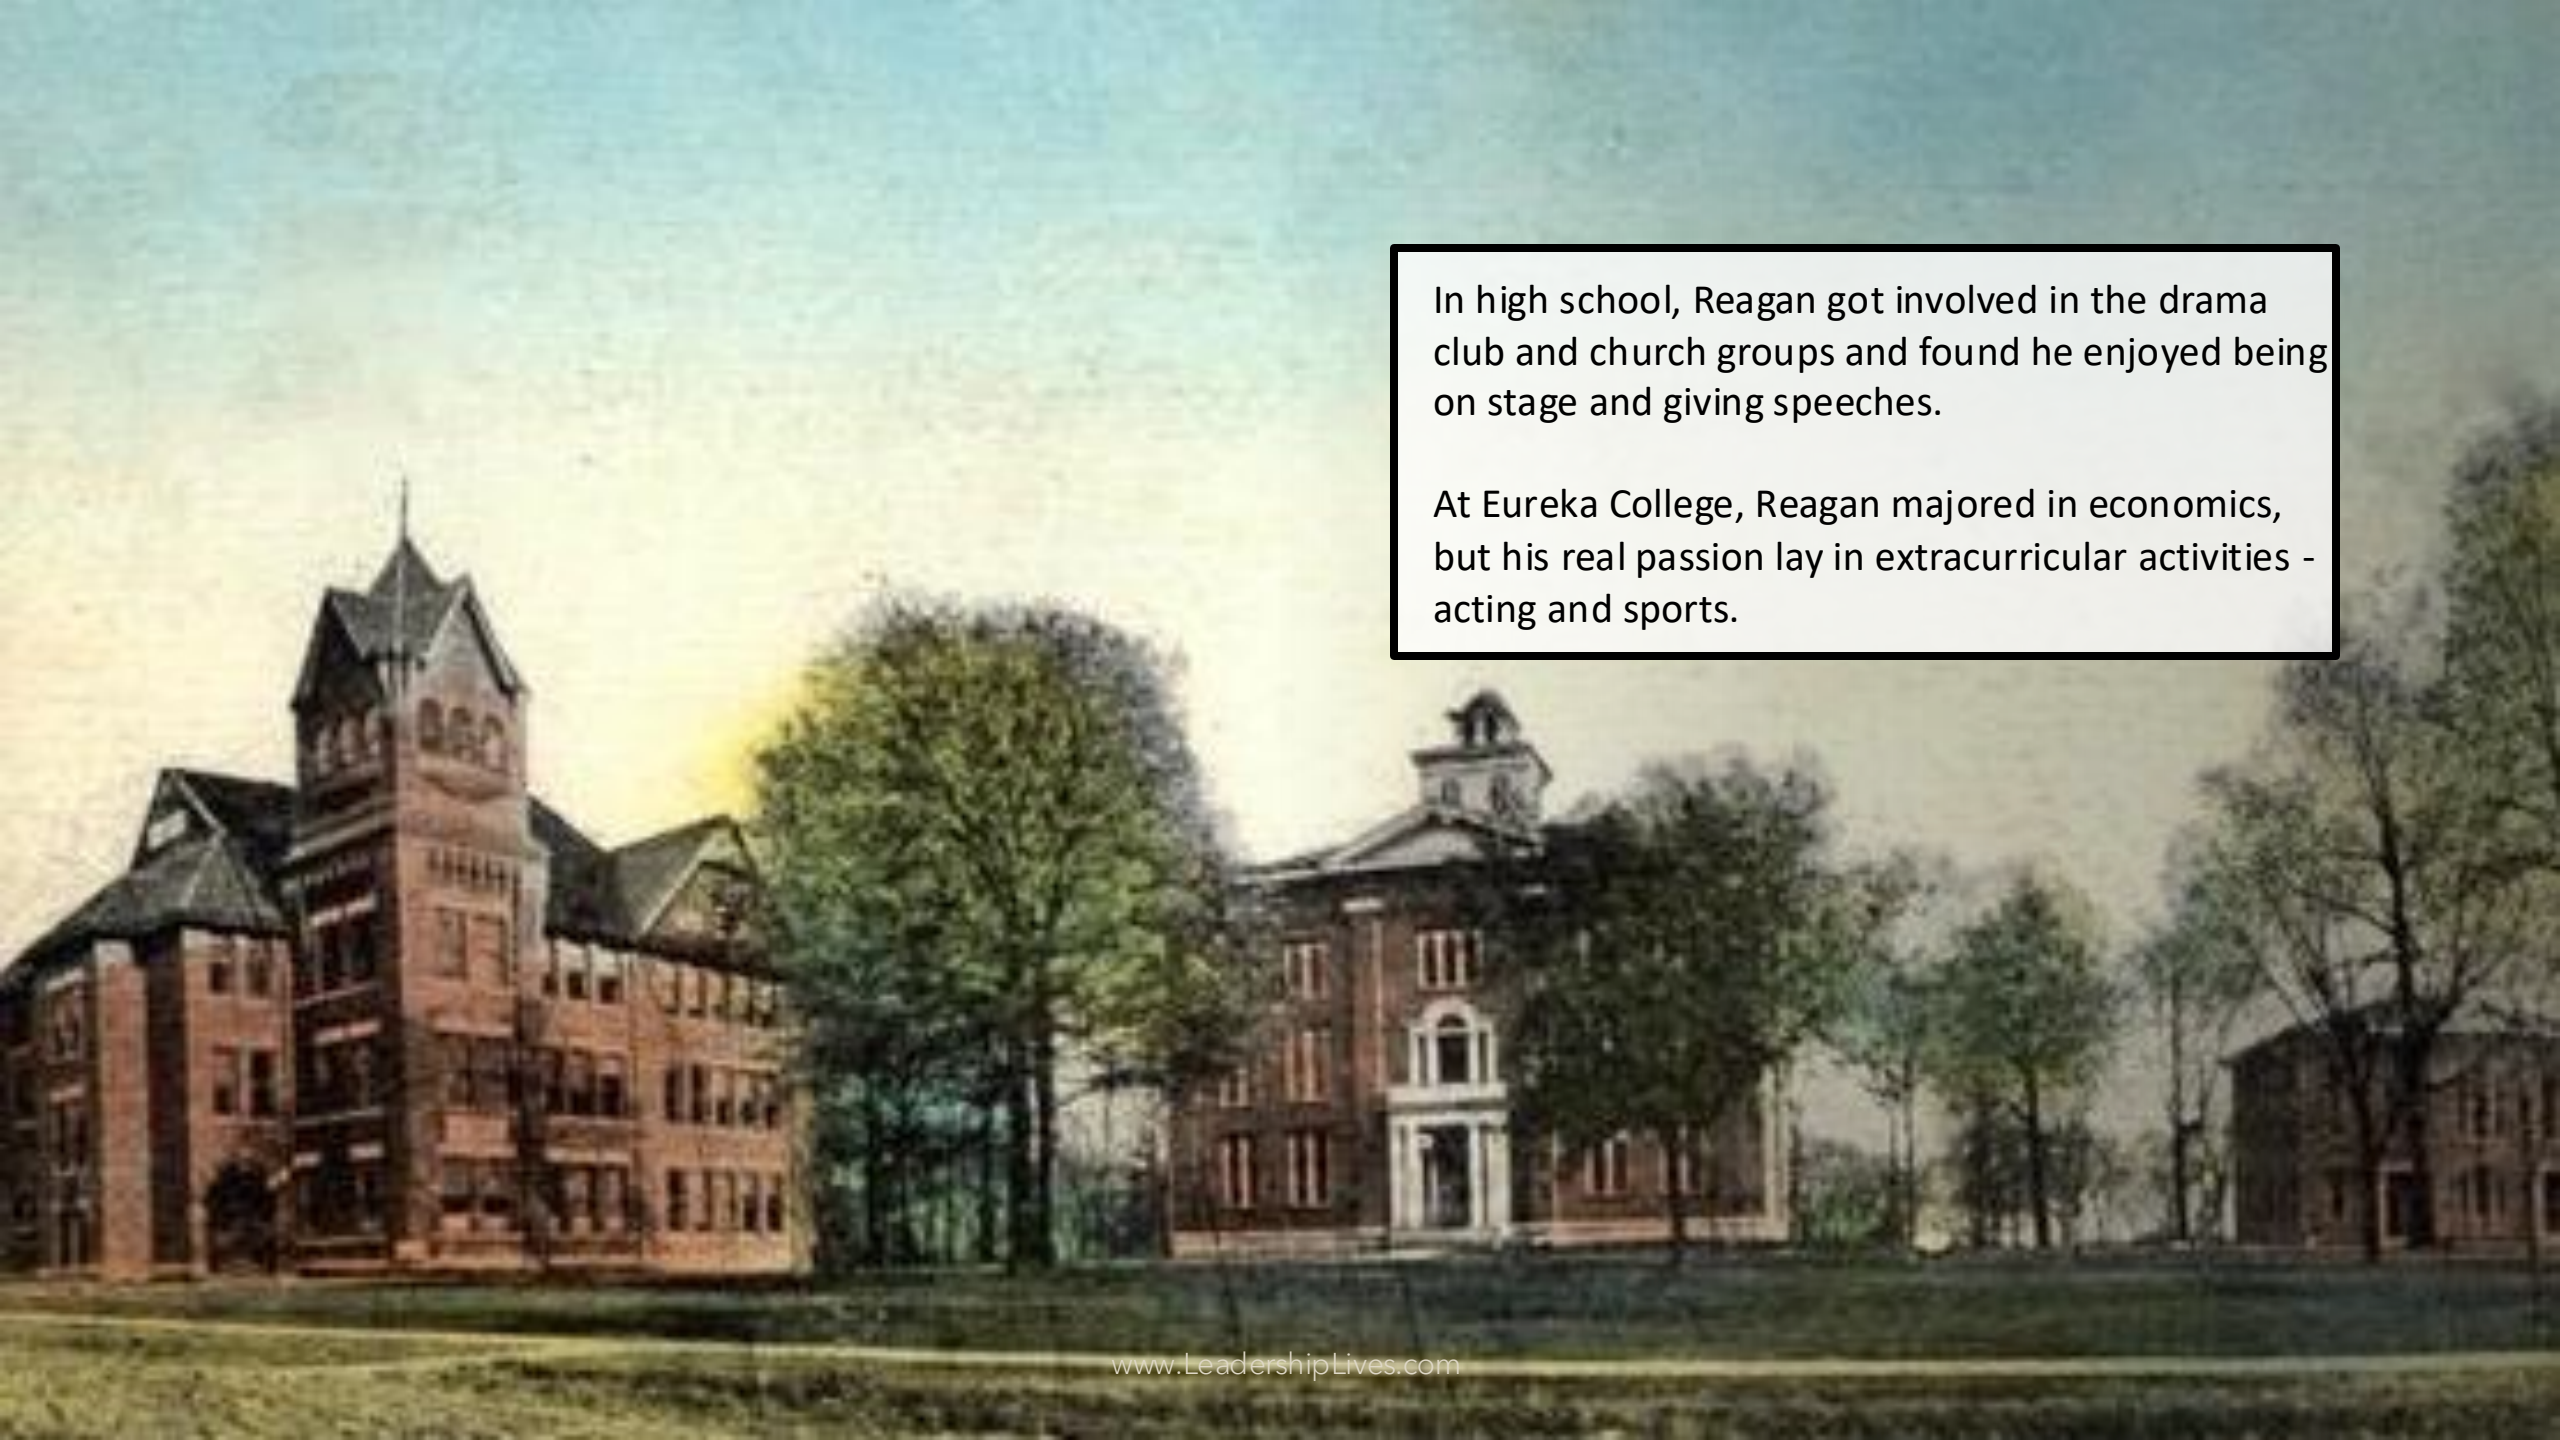

That evening, Sid Altschuler asked Reagan,
“What would you like to do?”

Suddenly, Reagan saw his future in a whole new way. Instead of thinking about who’s hiring? Where can I get a job? He started thinking What do I want to do? What am I good at?

Before Altschuler disappeared back to Kansas City for the winter, Reagan desperately needed his savvy business wisdom and guidance.

So, for the next three days and nights, Reagan wrestled with the question – What do I want to do?

In high school, Reagan got involved in the drama club and church groups and found he enjoyed being on stage and giving speeches.

At Eureka College, Reagan majored in economics, but his real passion lay in extracurricular activities - acting and sports.

In his junior year at Eureka, Reagan won the “Best Actor Award” at the prestigious acting competition sponsored by Northwestern. Reagan beat tough contenders from top universities.

Before he got on the bus back to Eureka, the head of Northwestern’s Drama Department called him aside to ask if he’d given any thought to a career in acting. Up to that moment he hadn’t.

Hollywood and Broadway seemed “as inaccessible as outer space.” But, as Reagan thought about it, there was one possibility closer to home.

At Eureka, Reagan loved to entertain his frat brothers by “broadcasting” famous football games using a broom or ice-cream cone as a microphone.

He decided to pursue a career as a sportscaster - a close-to-home starting point for a career on Broadway or in Hollywood.

Sid Altschuler assured Reagan the economic downturn wouldn’t last forever, and he approved of Reagan's choice of radio – as a “sound industry.”

Altschuler told Reagan to start “knocking on doors, tell anyone who’ll listen that you believe you have a future in the business” and take any job - “sweeping floors” - just to get a foot in the door.

Reagan hitchhiked to Chicago, slept on a frat brother's sofa, and knocked on the door of every radio station in town.

"An angel" at WMAQ gave him some much-needed encouragement. She listened patiently and assured Reagan he had "every right to try for a place in radio."

Then, she laid out the hard facts and set him on the path to success. He was going about it all wrong, she explained, "No one in the city wants to take a chance on inexperience."

He'd have a better chance of finding a job at a smaller radio station in "the sticks."

Monday morning, Reagan borrowed his father's third-hand Oldsmobile and headed west to Davenport, Iowa, home of a handful of radio stations.

At his first stop, NBC affiliate, WOC, Reagan met program director Pete McArthur, who became a valued mentor.

After an audition, McArthur offered Reagan "five dollars and bus fare" to broadcast four home football games for the University of Iowa. At the end of the first game, Reagan got a raise. He was now paid $10 a game.

But there was no job offer at the end of the season.

FIRED

For two nail-biting months Reagan waited. Just before Christmas, Pete MacArthur called to say, "hang in there." In early February, Pete called again, this time with a job offer. Reagan took the bus to Davenport early the next morning with his one suitcase. A few weeks later disaster struck. He was fired.

For Reagan, it was “the end of the world.” He wasn’t bringing the commercials to life. Advertisers were burning up the phone lines with complaints to management.

When Reagan’s replacement backed out – he wanted a contract which the station wouldn’t give him – Reagan got his job back temporarily. Reagan now knew he needed help and demanded it. Supportive conversations with friends and blistering coaching sessions with Pete helped Reagan improve his on-air delivery. It didn’t take much, and it didn’t take long. Reagan was now firmly on the path to success.

CAREER 1 / SPORTSCASTER

Thanks to Sid Altschuler's advice, less than a year after graduating from Eureka, during the worst depression in U.S. history, Ronald Reagan was on his way to being a radio star in the "solar plexus of the country" and, beyond that, to a spectacularly successful career.

Best of all, he was doing what he was good at and what he loved to do.

Two years later, Reagan approached management with a suggestion: if the radio station would pay his expenses, he would use his vacation time to cover the Chicago Cubs' spring training on Catalina Island.

The knowledge he gained would pay dividends during the long baseball season. Management snapped up his offer and Reagan got a paid vacation to southern California in the depths of the Iowa winter.

Ronald Reagan before and after his Hollywood transformation.

On his third trip to Catalina, Reagan wrangled an audition with a Hollywood studio. Against all odds, he was offered a contract with Warner Bros. They liked his voice.

While driving to Hollywood from Iowa, Reagan daydreamed of playing George Gipp – “the Gipper” – Notre Dame's football hero. Gipp died in his senior year two weeks after throwing a 55-yard scoring touchdown in a game against Northwestern.

When Reagan heard in the cafeteria that Warner's was making a movie about Notre Dame football, he raced to the executive producer's office to make the case he was perfect for the part.

The Gipper was the role that made Reagan a star.

CAREER 2 / MOVIE STAR

Reagan married fellow actor Jane Wyman who he met while making the smash hit comedy, Brother Rat, based on Virginia Military Institute.

Their careers flourished. In 1948, Jane Wyman won the Academy Award for Best Actress for her role as a deaf-mute in Johnny Belinda.

At the peak of Reagan's movie career – the star had just been placed on his dressing room door – 353 Japanese planes bombed Pearl Harbor.

Ronald Reagan was the first Hollywood star drafted by the U.S. Army. Due to his weak eyesight, he wasn't sent overseas. He served for three years doing what he did best - making films for military training and to boost morale.

Concerned he would be forgotten by the public, Reagan began giving speeches to church and community groups in his spare time.

CAREER 3 / UNION LEADER

After he was discharged at the end of World War II, despite some great roles, Reagan never got his movie career back on track. And he was heartbroken when Jane Wyman announced she wanted a divorce.

His path forward was through the Screen Actors Guild – a first-rate organization of 75,000 members with a 50-person board of directors. Fellow actors were impressed by his ability to explain complicated issues clearly.

Elected president seven times, Reagan learned world-class negotiating skills during his time with SAG. An expertise he used in years ahead.

In 1952, Reagan married fellow actor, Nancy Davis, who proved to be an invaluable partner.

Reagan's best friend and fellow SAG board member, William Holden, was his best man.

A new-fangled contraption called television was encroaching on the movie business. Academy Award winning actors were struggling to make a living.

The Reagans appeared in ads and as guests on TV shows and occasionally snagged a movie role.

CAREER 4 / CORPORATE AMBASSADOR

In the early days of television, top companies sponsored programs. America's premier company, General Electric, sponsored world-class programming that varied widely from week to week. GE needed a host – "someone of good moral character, intelligent" - to provide continuity.

In 1953, GE hired Ronald Reagan to travel around America speaking to GE employees and their communities and to host General Electric Theater. For eight years, it was an extraordinarily successful partnership.

CAREER 5 / POLITICS

By the early 1950s, Democrats and Republicans were pleading with Reagan to run for office. He turned down all offers with thanks saying, “I’m a ham - always was and always will be.”

He was a registered Democrat who voted for FDR four times but in the 1950s, he got involved in the Right to Work campaign which held that “all Americans must have the right to join a union if they choose to, but none should ever be forced to affiliate with a union in order to get or keep a job.”

The connections he made in that campaign led to a new path. When he finally changed his registration to Republican in 1962 – in the middle of a speech - he joked, “I didn’t leave the party. The party left me.”

In 1963, Reagan wrote, “One does what he feels he can do best and serves where he feels he can make the greatest contribution.”

He said he was trying on a number of different hats. There was one he was sure didn’t fit. That was politics.

REAGAN'S JOURNEY — LESSONS FROM A REMARKABLE CAREER

LESSONS FROM A REMARKABLE CAREER

www.LeadershipLives.com

1 / DISCOVER YOUR TALENTS; DEVELOP YOUR STRENGTHS

“...In college, I majored in sociology and economics. Not because I liked the subjects, but because they gave me the most time for things I really like, namely, college dramatics, football and a dive into campus politics... Point being that success for me is where the heart is.”

Ronald Reagan, 1942

2 / FIND MENTORS; SET GOALS

Identify people around you whose approach to life you admire. Ask their advice, listen carefully, take notes, and put their advice into action.

After acting on your mentors' advice, you can go back to them to review progress, fine-tune your approach, and set new goals.

REAGAN'S JOURNEY — LESSONS FROM A REMARKABLE CAREER

3 / BRAND YOURSELF

To develop a strong brand or image, start by getting clear on your goal. How do you want to be seen? Then set about becoming the person you want to be.

REAGAN'S JOURNEY — LESSONS FROM A REMARKABLE CAREER

4 / CREATE A NETWORK OF CONTACTS AND SUPPORTERS

“I have found Ronald Reagan to be a kind man. He is a gentle man. To the discomfiture of those who have misread him, he is also a strong man. In defense of the values he believes in, he can be indomitable.”

Earl Dunckel, General Electric

5 / TURNING POINTS AND TRANSITIONS

Four times Reagan's life slammed into a brick wall. He was heartbroken by his divorce from first wife Jane Wyman; the collapse of his long-standing relationship with Warner Bros.; the termination of his eight-year association with General Electric; and a hard-fought loss to President Gerald Ford in the 1976 primary campaign. Yet after every disaster, he picked himself up and kept moving forward.

REAGAN'S JOURNEY — LESSONS FROM A REMARKABLE CAREER

6 / UNLEASH THE POWER OF YOUR TEAM

“Ronald Reagan , to my way of thinking, was about as near as perfect a candidate as you can get, because he let people handle the mechanics of the campaign. He didn’t interfere. He let people do what they did best.”

Lyn Nofziger, Communications Director, 1966 - 1980

Wishing you tremendous success with your career!

www.LeadershipLives.com

BIBLIOGRAPHY

Morrell, Margot. Reagan's Journey - Lessons from a Remarkable Career. New York: Threshold Editions, 2011.

Reagan, Ronald, and Hubler, Richard G. Where's the Rest of Me? New York: Duell, Sloan and Pearce, 1965.

IMAGE CREDITS

RONALD REAGAN, GOVERNOR OF CALIFORNIA, 1967. PUBLIC DOMAIN.

GRADUATION CAPS, MICROSOFT POWERPOINT DESIGNER.

DIXON WAR MEMORIAL ARCH, DIXON, ILLINOIS, UNITED STATES. IVO SHANDOR, CC BY-SA 3.0, VIA WIKIMEDIA COMMONS.

LOWELL PARK, DIXON, ILLINOIS, 1920S-ERA POSTCARD, EDITED AND COLORIZED BY CHATGPT.

RONALD REAGAN AS A LIFEGUARD IN LOWELL PARK, ILLINOIS. 1927. HISTORICAL PHOTOGRAPH COLLECTION, 1890S-1985; RONALD REAGAN HISTORICAL PHOTOGRAPHS, 1981–1985; WHITE HOUSE PHOTOGRAPHIC COLLECTION. RONALD REAGAN PRESIDENTIAL LIBRARY, SIMI VALLEY, CA.

EUREKA COLLEGE, POSTCARD. PUBLIC DOMAIN.

RONALD REAGAN, CA. 1934. PUBLIC DOMAIN.

RONALD REAGAN, PLAYING FOOTBALL AT EUREKA COLLEGE, 1929. SERIES: REAGAN WHITE HOUSE PHOTOGRAPHS, 1/20/1981 - 1/20/1989 COLLECTION: WHITE HOUSE PHOTOGRAPHIC COLLECTION, 1/20/1981 - 1/20/1989, PUBLIC DOMAIN, VIA WIKIMEDIA COMMONS.

STATE STREET LOOKING SOUTH FROM MARSHALL FIELD, CHICAGO, IL. STATE STREET COUNCIL, PUBLIC DOMAIN, VIA WIKIMEDIA COMMONS.

NEWLY COMPLETED IOWA STADIUM, EDITED AND COLORIZED BY CHATGPT. THE DAILY TIMES (DAVENPORT, IOWA), OCTOBER 17, 1929.

RONALD REAGAN AS A WHO RADIO ANNOUNCER IN DES MOINES, IOWA. SERIES: REAGAN WHITE HOUSE PHOTOGRAPHS, 1/20/1981 - 1/20/1989 COLLECTION: WHITE HOUSE PHOTOGRAPHIC COLLECTION, 1/20/1981 - 1/20/1989, PUBLIC DOMAIN, VIA WIKIMEDIA COMMONS.

CHICAGO CUBS BASEBALL, CA. 1930S. PUBLIC DOMAIN.

RONALD REAGAN AT EAST HIGH SCHOOL IN DES MOINES IOWA, 1936. SERIES: REAGAN WHITE HOUSE PHOTOGRAPHS, 1/20/1981 - 1/20/1989 COLLECTION: WHITE HOUSE PHOTOGRAPHIC COLLECTION, 1/20/1981 - 1/20/1989, PUBLIC DOMAIN, VIA WIKIMEDIA COMMONS.

RONALD REAGAN, TRANSFORMED BY HOLLYWOOD. PUBLIC DOMAIN.

RONALD REAGAN, CORPORATE AMBASSADOR AND HOST OF GENERAL ELECTRIC THEATER. RONALD REAGAN LIBRARY, PUBLIC DOMAIN, VIA WIKIMEDIA COMMONS.

IMAGE CREDITS, CON'T.

KNUTE ROCKNE, ALL AMERICAN POSTER, EDITED. VITAGRAPH INC., A SUBSIDIARY OF WARNER BROS., PUBLIC DOMAIN, VIA WIKIMEDIA COMMONS.

RONALD REAGAN AND JANE WYMAN IN BROTHER RAT, SCREENSHOT. WARNER BROS., PUBLIC DOMAIN, VIA WIKIMEDIA COMMONS.

RONALD REAGAN IN WORLD WAR II. CASSOWARY COLORIZATIONS, CC BY 2.0, VIA WIKIMEDIA COMMONS.

RONALD REAGAN TESTIFYING BEFORE THE HOUSE COMMITTEE ON UN-AMERICAN ACTIVITIES, OCTOBER 25, 1947. SERIES: REAGAN WHITE HOUSE PHOTOGRAPHS, 1/20/1981 - 1/20/1989 COLLECTION: WHITE HOUSE PHOTOGRAPHIC COLLECTION, 1/20/1981 - 1/20/1989, PUBLIC DOMAIN, VIA WIKIMEDIA COMMONS.

NANCY DAVIS AND RONALD REAGAN — WEDDING DAY PICTURE, WITH BEST MAN WILLIAM HOLDEN AND HIS WIFE BRENDA MARSHALL, MARCH 4, 1952. AMERICAN PICTURES COLLECTION, PUBLIC DOMAIN, VIA WIKIMEDIA COMMONS.

RONALD REAGAN, CORPORATE AMBASSADOR AND HOST OF GENERAL ELECTRIC THEATER. RONALD REAGAN LIBRARY, PUBLIC DOMAIN, VIA WIKIMEDIA COMMONS.

RONALD REAGAN, GOVERNOR OF CALIFORNIA, 1967. RONALD REAGAN LIBRARY, CC BY-SA 4.0, VIA WIKIMEDIA COMMONS.

RONALD REAGAN AT RANCHO DEL CIELO, 1976. PUBLIC DOMAIN, VIA WIKIMEDIA COMMONS.